

Based in Savannah, Susie Chisholm (b. 1949) has been named official sculptor of the Boston Tea Party Ships and Museum in Massachusetts. In June her life-size figure of the Minuteman Capt. John Parker was unveiled there, and now she is completing the larger-than-life bronze of Sam Adams that will stand in front of the museum. It will be unveiled on December 16, the anniversary of the Tea Party itself. Chisholm has considerable experience in sculpting figures from American history, having already depicted the composer Johnny Mercer for Savannah and the real estate developer Charles Fraser for Hilton Head Island.

Susie Chisholm (b. 1949) with her sculpture of Sam Adams
Photo: Daniel L. Grantham, Jr.